FDA Releases Draft Guidance to Fast-Track Cell and Gene Therapies

FDA issued draft guidance enabling genome-editing gene-therapy developers to leverage public and platform knowledge, including CMC, nonclinical, and clinical data, to streamline submissions. Sponsors must justify applicability, maintain safety and efficacy standards, engage FDA early, and submit comments within 90 days.

Jun 29, 2026

FDA selects seven firms for a drug manufacturing pilot

FDA selected seven companies for its PreCheck Pilot Program to strengthen US pharmaceutical manufacturing and supply-chain resilience: Amneal, Cellares, Eli Lilly, FUJIFILM Biotechnologies, Kriya Therapeutics, Kyowa Kirin, and Regeneron. The two-phase model offers early facility guidance and enhanced application support.

FDA revises regulations to promote innovative alternatives to animal testing

- FDA rule: Clarifies that Non-Animal Methods (NAMs) can support safety assessments of drugs and biologics before human trials, where appropriate
- Expanded approaches: Recognizes human cells, organ-on-chip systems, and computational models, while replacing animal-focused terminology with “nonclinical”
- No new requirements: The rule does not prohibit animal studies, change evidentiary standards, or add new development requirements
- NAMs database & comments: FDA launched a 25-example NAMs use-case database and is accepting public comments; significant adverse comments could lead to withdrawal and standard rulemaking

UPDATES

EU Based Updates

Jul 02, 2026

EMA advances efforts to address women's health needs

- Women's health focus: EMA is integrating sex-specific considerations across medicines development and regulation
- Clinical & safety assessment: Focus includes trial representation, efficacy, safety, dosing, and pregnancy/breastfeeding evidence, alongside pharmacovigilance
- Evidence generation: EMA will expand DARWIN EU® real-world evidence studies, identify research gaps, and reduce regulatory uncertainty
- Collaboration & priorities: EMA will strengthen stakeholder and international collaboration, with the 28–29 September Women's Health Workshop helping shape future priorities

Sep 01, 2026

Voluntary Data Submission Pilot to Accelerate Alternatives to Animal Testing

- EMA launched a voluntary data submission pilot to facilitate the sharing and regulatory assessment of New Approach Methodologies (NAMs), including organoids, microphysiological systems, and computational models
- Purpose: Support the replacement or reduction of animal studies in medicines development
- Submission & feedback: Companies, researchers, and other stakeholders can submit NAM data independently of marketing applications and receive non-binding expert feedback
- Regulatory impact: The pilot aims to build regulatory experience, harmonise assessment approaches, and strengthen NAM acceptance across Europe
- Timeline: Submissions are expected through Q3 2027, followed by an EMA lessons-learned report
